

Hope Star

VOLUME 32—NUMBER 9

Star of Hope, founded 1899; Hope Daily Post, 1927; Consolidated as Hope Star, January 18, 1929.

HOPE, ARKANSAS, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1930

(AP)—Means Associated Press.
(NEA)—Means Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.

PRICE 5c COPY

THREE KILLED IN GUN FIGHT

Texarkana Hunters' Arrest Brings Dispute

Arrested While on Hunting Trip Near
Line of Two States

Arkansas and Texas May Go to Courts Over Strip
Along Red River

BOTH CLAIM LAND

6 Well Known Texarkana Men Claim They Were Hunting in Texas

TEXARKANA, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Arrest of six Arkansas hunters Tuesday foreshadowed a legal dispute between the states of Arkansas and Texas over the ownership of a strip of land left between the changing course of the Red river.

Officials have expressed the belief the United States Supreme Court may be called upon to settle the land dispute, which is similar to disputes which have arisen over the meanderings of the Mississippi.

The six Arkansas men, Texarkana residents were arrested by Arkansas officers on charge of illegal hunting and released under $100 bond for hearing at Ashdown Saturday before Justice J. T. Grounds.

The hunters, members of a hunting club located the controversial strip of land, as hunting license they were hunting.

David Arnold, former Arkansas state senator, R. R. Creekmore, W. M. McClain, J. H. Young, Sam Milazzo, Jr., and Bryant Holmes. They said a test case would be taken to the federal court to determine ownership of the land.

Two States Claim Strip

Both Texas and Arkansas claim the land and trouble over jurisdiction has arisen between Bowie county, Texas, and Little River county, Arkansas, on several previous occasions.

Little River county officials have been collecting taxes from the land for several years and Hugh Ashford, Texas game warden, said he believed Arkansas had jurisdiction there. However, Judge George Johnson and other Bowie county (Texas) court officials claim Texas ownership.

The Department of Agriculture map (Continued on Page Three)

Aids Husband's Campaign

Cazort and Dew Face Indictments In Phillips County

Lieut. Governor Surprised at Action of Grand Jury at Helena

MAY POSTPONE CASE
Case May Not Be Tried This Term of Court
Prosecutor Says

HELENA, Oct. 29.—Lieutenant Governor Lee Cazort and Ernest Dew, former clerk in the state gasoline tax department, were indicted by the Phillips county grand jury at its final session here Tuesday on charges of violating the corrupt practices act by an alleged attempt to bribe Judge John C. Sheffield to withdraw from the gubernatorial race last June.

It could not be learned whether this case will be tried at the present term of circuit court, but it likely will be continued on account of shortage of county funds, and the desire of Prosecuting Attorney R. D. Smith to give those defendants now held in jail a hearing.

Fifty-eight other indictments were returned by the grand jury, the majority of these charging grand larceny and liquor law violations.

The remaining days of this week will be consumed in hearing civil cases.

Lieutenant Governor Cazort said that he had believed the "so-called bribery charge" against him would be dropped following the Democratic primary but that since it was not, he will seek trial at the earliest possible date.

"I have committed no crime, legally, morally or technically," he said, "and I believe I will be vindicated by the courts, if this case is ever brought to trial."

Fred A. Isgrig, attorney for Mr. Cazort, said he was very much surprised to hear that an indictment had been returned. "Mr. Cazort has committed no offense and I did not believe any grand jury would return an indictment on such a flimsy, political pretense," Mr. Isgrig said. "I have no fear of the outcome when the case is brought to trial. Until I have seen a copy of the indictment and know more details, I do not care to comment further, beyond saying that we shall seek an early disposition of the case."

The occasion marks the finale of the fourth annual finals of the Arkansas radio audition which takes place every year before the "milk" of the Chamber's broadcaster, KTHS, and is given in honor of the contestants, accompanists, officers and judges who participate in the musical event sponsored by the Atwater Kent Foundation.

There will be over 30 young artists from almost as many communities of Arkansas. They will take the air promptly at 3 o'clock and continue to broadcast until 6 p. m. instead of from 3:30 to 6 p. m. as was first announced. This extension of time was necessary, according to Campbell Arnoux, station and audition manager, because of the large number of entrants competing and the wide interest shown in the audition all over Arkansas.

The girls will broadcast first. The boys will follow immediately afterwards. The young man and woman winning this audition will represent the state at the district audition to be held in Dallas next month and if successful will share in ten scholarships and $25,000 in cash rewards which the Foundation offers.

Scott D. Hamilton, the Chamber's manager will give the official greeting at the banquet. Other speakers will include Mrs. Alice C. Henninger of Little Rock, state audition chairman and Mr. Arnoux.

On this occasion Hope will be represented by two young singers. They are: Miss Martha Jean Winburn, soprano, and John Sidney Waddle, baritone.

AMENDMENTS
No. 20.—To abolish the appointive state highway commission and provide seven commissioners, one to be elected from each congressional district, at a salary of $2,000 each.

No. 21.—To prohibit the legislature from increasing the present rates for state property taxes except after a vote of the people.

No. 22.—To establish a budget system of administering state revenues and expenses, and to limit the expenses of sessions of the legislature.

No. 23.—To require proof of actual payment of any bill declared to be a law by the legislature.

No. 24.—To permit mandamus action against the governor to require him to call special elections to fill vacancies in office, as provided by the constitution.

No. 25.—To prohibit any reduction in the salaries of the supreme court justices.

No. 26.—To prohibit inheritance or death taxes in excess of the amount of the state tax levied by the federal government.

No. 27.—To prohibit back-tax suits except in case of fraud.

Farmer Near Mena
Is Found Dead

MENA, Oct. 29.—A coroner's jury Tuesday decided E. A. Hilligist, 60, farmer living northwest of Mena, came to his death by accidental discharge of his own shotgun. The man's body was found near his farm home shot through the heart with the gun lying nearby. Hilligist's wife stated her husband had left home early to go hunting.

Legion Auxiliary Names
Officers at Nashville

NASHVILLE, Oct. 29.—The following officers have been elected to serve for the ensuing year in the Nashville American Legion Auxiliary:

Mrs. Jim Beauchamp, president; Mrs. L. C. Honeycutt, first vice president; Mrs. Jay V. Toland, second vice president; Mrs. Fred Murphy, secretary; Mrs. Cline Bryant, treasurer; Mrs. Alvin Gibson, sergeant at arms, and Mrs. F. M. Hughes, historian.

Cooking Saved Them

CARDIFF, (UP)—Four fox hounds lost in an old mine, followed the scent of a bloater cooked at the mouth of the pit, to safety.

The last board meeting of the fiscal year will be held by the Hope Chamber of Commerce directors at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the chamber offices in the city hall. A full attendance was urged by Secretary W. Homer Pigg in messages sent out to all the directors this morning.

Some of the other prices were:

Queen Marie Therese, $2; Victor Hugo

$25; Leon Gambetta, great French republican, $5; Alexander Dumas, $1.

and Christian VIII of Denmark $4.

Denver Woman Admits Murder

After steadfastly denying her guilt through several days of severe questioning, Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin of Denver, wife of a police detective, broke down and confessed that she killed her stepchild, 10-year-old Leonid O'Loughlin, whose body had been found in a lake. In this picture Mrs. O'Loughlin is shown being taken to jail by Detectives Arthur Wachter (left) and J. S. Turner. Inset is a closeup of the woman, taken in jail.

Stabbs Another Girl For
Claiming Attentions of Boy Friend

STABBS ANOTHER GIRL FOR
CLAIMING ATTENTIONS OF BOY FRIEND

CAMDEN, S. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Little Villepigue, 18-year-old girl who stabbed Bessie Robinson, 16, because she was attentive to her boy friend, submitted a plea of manslaughter in General Sessions Court here today.

The state which had placed a murder charge against the young woman accepted this plea. She was given a six year sentence.

SEVENTY-FIVE birdshot struck Hancock failed to heed a command to disperse still three miles through swamps to his automobile. His wounds are not considered serious.

The two deputies were members of a raiding party under Sheriff W. W. Davenport ruled that he was without authority to call a special grand jury.

After Circuit Judge W. D. Davenport ruled that he was without authority to call a special grand jury, warrants were issued for Cazort and Dew in Helena Municipal Court. They were held for preliminary hearing and were held to the grand jury under bond of $500 each.

Lieutenant Governor Cazort was the principal sponsor of proposed Constitutional Amendment No. 20, which would provide for an elective Highway Commission of seven members to replace the present appointive commission of five members. The amendment will be voted on at the general election Tuesday.

Bonds For Nashville
School Will Be Sold

$45,000 Issue Slated to Be Sold November 17 For New Building

NASHVILLE, Oct. 29.—The $45,000 bond issue for erection of a modern grammar school here will be sold on November 17, the board of directors of the Nashville special school district has announced.

The issue will be used for erection of a school building on the present athletic field of the district and the remodeling of the present grammar school building for a high school. A new athletic field will be provided.

Plans for the new structure have not been completed and are still in the hands of the state educational department for approval. The state department is expected to act on the plans in the near future.

Celebrities' Autographs
Auctioned Off Cheap

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(UP)—Paris has discovered that its historic town hall does not possess a balcony upon which transatlantic aviators, visiting kings and other popular heroes can be welcomed in full view of the public below. When Lindbergh was received he had to crawl out on a window ledge to wave to the crowd.

A portable wooden balcony has been built to remedy this situation and to permit heroes to be adored publicly. It will be put out of the window on state occasions and taken in when there are no heroes.

State Pays Pair For Slaying 155 Seals

OLYMPIA, Wash., Oct. 29.—(UPI)—

The state issued a $300 bounty check to Fred Kaloo, Bayview, Wash., who killed 153 seals last month on Kodiac flat.

Guy Beckhorn, who killed 52 seals in Nezqually flats, drew the second largest check.

A bounty of $3 is paid for every seal destroyed.

Arizona Dedicates
Monuments to Pioneers

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 29.—(UPI)—A monument, erected in tribute to the men who established Arizona's first territorial government in 1863, has been dedicated at Navajo Springs.

The memorial bears the inscription: "Arizona Territorial Government Organized here, Dec. 29, 1863."

Wilson Replies to Chester Hospital in Charity Cases

County Judge Denies Sending Patients From Poor Farm

SAYS FUNDS SHORT

Failures to Remit Hospital Appropriation Is Explained

A statement issued yesterday by the executive board of Julia Chester hospital drew the following reply today from County Judge John L. Wilson:

"In yesterday's Star Mrs. Roy Anderson and the executive board of Julia Chester hospital are quoted as saying I sent two patients to the hospital from the county farm.

"I want to beg their pardon, but would be glad for The Star to say from me that I have not this year presented any order for anyone to be sent to any hospital.

"The reason I have not paid the appropriation made by the Quorum Court is that I told the court last fall I had to pay the necessary expense of the county government, and then if there was anything left over they might have is for other appropriations.

"You can ask the treasurer how the financial condition of the county stands at present.

"I would be glad to comply with the hospital's wishes, but the money just won't hold out long enough to go around to everybody."

"In closing, I would be glad for The Star to say from me that if the dear people were just one-thousandth part as anxious to pay taxes as they are to spend them, our treasury would undoubtedly be in first class condition. Yours truly, JOHN L. WILSON, County and Probate Judge."

Local Merchants To Meet Thursday

October Session Will Be Held at City Hall
at 7:15 p. m.

All plans have been completed for the October meeting of the Hope Auto company, and the office in the Grand building is being renovated and furnished by the Hope Lumber company. It will open for business Saturday morning.

Managers of local industrial plants, including the postoffice, highway department, railroads and other public services, have been extended a special invitation to meet with the merchants. Secretary J. C. Carlton said.

County Agent Lynn Smith will be one of the speakers.

Former Texarkana Man Is Held For Car Theft

TEXARKANA, Oct. 29.—Edward Kesterson of Texarkana was held for the Arkansas side Federal Grand Jury in bond of $2,000 on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Dallas, Tex., to Lewisville, Ark., in August 1929, following a hearing before United States Commissioner J. W. Stevens yesterday. Failing to furnish bond he was jailed. Kesterson formerly was a member of the Texas side Fire Department, but resigned several years ago.

Mrs. Yocom, today said her husband would not discuss the matter and also added that she did not know where he had been. "I doubt very much if he himself even knows."

Yocom was picked up by a motorist, walking along a lonely road near Atkinson, Ill., which is about fifteen miles west of Galva.

The motorist, Virgil DeReu, said that Yocom stopped him and asked if he got into the car the banker identified himself.

A four day growth of beard was on the banker's face but according to DeReu, he seemed to be in good spirits. He laughed and smiled a lot but did not talk about his experience," DeReu added.

As the car was driven up to the front of the Locomotive home the banker got out and hurried into the house, avoiding questions hurled at him by reporters who had camped on the lawn for the past three days.

Light Switches and Theatres Foreign to Her

KENDALLVILLE, Ind., Oct. 29.—

(UPI)—Mrs. Amelia Roser, Kendallville, while celebrating her 94th birthday anniversary, admitted she had never attended a theatre, nor operated an electric switch.

Mrs. Roser was born in Bucyrus, O.,

and came to Indiana with her parents,

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bitter, in a covered wagon drawn by oxen.

Hope Star

Published every week-day afternoon by STAR PUBLISHING CO. (C. E. Palmer & Alex. H. Washburn), at 217 South Main street, Hope, Ark.

C. E. PALMER, President

ALEX H. WASHBURN, Editor and Publisher

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at Hope, Arkansas under the Act of March 3, 1897.

Member of The Associated Press. The Associated Press is exclusive to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or otherwise credited in this paper and also the local news service. All rights of reproduction of special dispatches herein are also reserved.

Subscription Rates (Always Payable in Advance): By city carrier, per month $5; six months $2.50; one year $5.00. By mail, in Hempstead, Nevada, Howard, Miller and LaFayette counties, $3.00 per year, elsewhere $5.00.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, thru widely circulated advertisements, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Col. R. R. McCormick.

The Star's Platform

CITY

Apply the revenues of the municipal power plant to develop the industrial and social resources of Hope.

More city pavement in 1930, and improved sanitary conditions in the offices and business back-yards.

COUNTY

A county highway program providing for the construction of a minimum amount of all-weather road each year to standardize the dirt and mileage.

Political and economic support for a new program which offers practical benefits to Hempstead County.

Encourage former organizations, believe it or not, to be practical in the country as it is in town.

STATE

Continued progress on the state highway program.

Fairness tax reform, and a more efficient government through the budget system of expenditures.

Free Arkansas from the cattle tick.

A Resolve For Drivers

THERE is nothing particularly new in the statement that a tremendous number of people are killed by American automobile traffic every year. The exact figure is sufficiently startling, but all of us, when we get in our cars, reassure ourselves with the notion that we, at least, will never hit anyone; and so we go ahead, driving as we always have driven, secure in our belief that it is only the wildly reckless and selfish driver who ever runs down a pedestrian.

However, there is another way of looking at it that is rather wholesome.

The other day a man was sitting on his front porch, looking out at his little boy, who was playing with some other children in the front yard. The street was a fairly quiet one, not over-burdened with traffic as city streets go; but autos passed fairly frequently, and they seemed, to this watcher, to be going rather fast. The children ran and skipped about the lawn, and now and then one would carelessly dart out into the street to pick up a ball, or to chase a puppy dog or to evade some other youngster in a game of tag; and the man who was watching them got more and more nervous.

"Those autos," he mused to himself, "are traveling pretty fast. Suppose that one of those kids—my kid, for instance—should happen to dart out there at just the wrong time. What would happen? The best driver in the world wouldn't have time to stop, or turn out. And nobody can keep a kid from accidentally getting out in the street once in a while."

So, as he mused, the father got more and more worried about the speed of the autos that dashed by constantly; and then he happened to think that these motorists, after all, probably felt that they were not driving so very fast. They were not exceeding the speed limit. He himself often drove that fast on quiet residential streets.

And then this man formulated a new resolution, to govern his own conduct behind the steering wheel. He resolved that whenever he drove along a street beside which children were playing he would drive as slowly and as carefully as he would want other motorists to drive where his child was playing.

And that isn't a bad resolution for every driver. You never know what a child will do. A speed that is perfectly safe on a clear street can be hazardous on a street lined with playing children. When you drive along such a street try copying this man's resolution—and see if it doesn't make you go a little slowly.

Help For the Jobless

IT IS beginning to look as if the nation as a whole is at last waking up to the seriousness of the unemployment situation and preparing to do something effective to remedy it. President Hoover's relief commission gives every evidence of being both willing and able to plunge to the heart of the matter. States and cities have their own commissions, and such industrial leaders as Samuel Insull are calling on all of their employees to contribute funds for the aid of men who cannot find work.

The pressing need at the moment is to see to it that no man has to go hungry, to see to it that families of the unemployed get food and shelter and fuel—to combat, in other words, the immediate results of sudden poverty. But the nation will only do half of the job if it stops there.

Right now, when public attention is focused on the matter, would be an excellent time to go into the whole business of unemployment; to make an honest effort to find out, not only what can be done to relieve it when it appears, but what causes it in the first place, and how it can be avoided.

There may be the germ of a far-reaching and effective idea in the scheme of "staggered employment" that many big industries are adopting now. Under this scheme, men are put on shorter hours—at reduced pay—so that a given amount of work can be made to go farther, with a great many men receiving part-time employment instead of a few being employed all of the time.

That is a fine idea for times of stress. It may, eventually, prove an equally fine idea for times of prosperity.

Even when business is good we tend to have a steadily increasing number of jobless men, due to the constant improvement of mechanical devices. Many students of the situation believe that the solution for this problem lies in precisely this system of staggered jobs. Those Utopian goals of labor, the six-hour day and the five-day week, are actually being discussed by conservative industrialists.

It will take a great deal of study to determine just what should be done; but the opportunity should not be overlooked. We not only need to take care of the men who are in actual want now; we must devise some system whereby future unemployment crises can be avoided.

Cows will give more milk if given all the water they will drink, declares a herdsman. Some dairymen are accused of using the more direct method of putting the water in the milk.

No one ever heard of a wornout farm in Europe. Productive farms have been built on lands not naturally adapted to cultivation, and lands that were virgin more than a thousand years ago are made to produce even greater crops now than they did when first brought into use.—Farm and Ranch.

Time for a Few Cutting Remarks!

May Attempt Atlantic Flight

Pretty Helen Marie Boyd of Medina, N. Y., plans to go calling on her grandparents in Ireland by airplane. The 18-year-old aviator, shown here in the cockpit of her plane at the Donald Woodward Airport, LeRoy, N. Y., has announced she will attempt an eastward cross-Atlantic flight as soon as she has earned a transport license. A daughter of Thomas Boyd, Medina iron and brass manufacturer, she already has a pilot's license.

HOLLY SPRINGS

The farmers are almost through gathering in this section; digging potatoes is the order of the day.

Singing was well attended at this place Sunday afternoon; we were very glad to have Prof. Herschel Perry and Mrs. Perry of Willisville with us. J. E. Fincher attended singing at Bodcaw No. 1, Saturday night.

Misses Dovie Mae Bailey and Mary Lou Butcher spent the week end visiting in Hope.

J. L. Ware and family and H. K. Walters and family made a business trip to Prescott Saturday. Mr. Ware is under treatment of Dr. A. L. Buchannon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Waters spent Saturday night with Mr. Water's sister, Mrs. Hartfield Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Tyra Rollings were visiting Mrs. Rollings parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Silvey, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Thompson and children were visiting relatives in Pleasant Hill Community Sunday afternoon.

NICHOLS SCHOOLHOUSE

Health in this community is better at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith of Hope spent Sunday with Lee Marlow and family.

Bro. C. D. Cox filled his regular appointments at Corent Saturday and Sunday.

BATTLEFIELD

Prayer meeting was well attended at this place Sunday night.

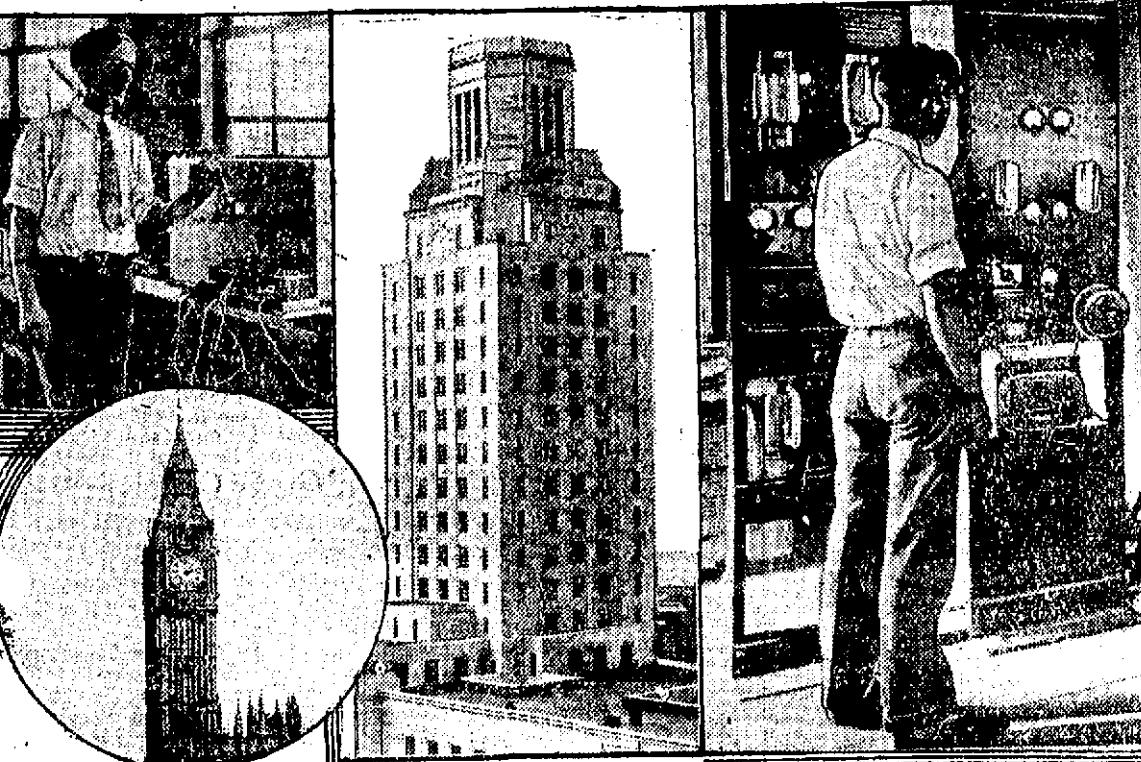

There will be a pie supper at the Battlefield school house Saturday night. Everybody is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Harden from near Guernsey called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sinyard Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Anderson spent night with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. McBry from Lost Prairie are spending a few days with friends and relatives at this place.

Synthetic "Big Ben" Heard Ten Miles

OZAN

Elmo Robins who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Robins has returned home to Victoria, Tex.

J. W. Gist and family, J. S. Crane and family, John H. Barrow and family, C. D. Ball and family and B. A. Barrow and wife attended the Fair at Shreveport, Sunday.

Mrs. E. H. Gist reported improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Robins visited in Nashville Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas Reed of Hope, were the guest of H. E. Robins and family Sunday.

Mrs. W. F. Robins, Mrs. Wilbur D. Jones, Mrs. J. B. Robins attended the Baptist convention at Murfreesboro last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Utley of Nashville were the guest of H. E. Robins and family Sunday.

Jerome Smith is home after spending last week in Foreman buying cotton.

Mrs. Jerome Smith attended the fair at Shreveport Sunday.

Fred Robins of Blainsville, La., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Robins Sunday.

SPRING HILL

Fred Honea made a fine speech at Fairview Sunday morning at 11 o'clock which was enjoyed by each one present.

Lester Clegg who has been going to school at Bodcaw has returned home.

The singing at this place Sunday night was well attended and enjoyed by those who attended.

There were several fine talks made by the young folks at this place Wednesday night at the Methodist church in prayer meeting.

Our Methodist preacher was called to Mineral Springs Sunday to fill a special appointment.

Lester Clegg has been visiting relatives in Texarkana.

There will be singing at this place each Sunday night. Everyone invited to come and bring a new song book.

There will also be prayer meeting here each Wednesday night. Everyone is welcome to come.

Radio Engineers Perfect Novel Means of Tolling the Hours

CAMDEN, N. J.—Engineers working in the laboratories of the RCA Victor Company have perfected an unusual device which, when amplified, exactly duplicates the magnificent tonal sonority of the world famous "Big Ben" chimes located in the tower of the House of Parliament in London.

This unassuming looking mechanism, inclosed in an ordinary wooden box, employs a lever which sets up the necessary vibrations by opening and closing a circuit. Installed in the tower of the courthouse at Camden, and broadcast through 9 banks of 20 amplifiers each, this synthetic "Big Ben" received its baptism recently as a part of celebrations during which Camden was dedicated the "Radio Center of the World." The ponderous "tolling" of this scientific alarm clock reverberated over the city and the surrounding countryside for nearly ten miles. Music also was broadcast in this fashion, as were

Daily Cross-word Puzzle

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

1. Noises	2. Beds	3. Sad	4. Grab
5. Guards	6. Oral	7. Age	8. Luna
8. A litter of the	9. Wife	10. Wife	11. Luna
9. Built in a	12. Consents	13. Consent	14. Luna
10. Night	14. Safes	15. Safes	16. Luna
11. Horseman in	16. Open	17. Doe	18. Luna
12. a building	17. Tenet	18. Rob	19. Luna
13. built with	19. Eli	20. Wan	21. Luna
14. finished	21. All	22. Fewe	23. Luna
15. Sweet scord-	23. Tepid	24. All	25. Luna
16. on an	25. Let	26. Tepid	27. Luna
17. Chinese men-	27. Indistinct	28. Let	29. Luna
18. of length	29. Indistinct	30. Mode	31. Luna
19. and narrow	31. Take	32. River	33. Luna
20. finished	33. The	34. Pertains	35. Luna
21. Take the	35. Dims	36. Vase	37. Luna
22. months of	37. Erie	38. Erie	39. Luna
23. play on words	39. Leo	40. Leo	41. Luna
24. Indistinct	41. Anna	42. Anna	43. Luna
25. Potential	43. Dins	44. Key	45. Luna
26. Waves con-	45. Step	46. Step	47. Luna
27. Small waves	47. Edna	48. Edna	49. Luna
28. Cut of work	49. Helen	50. Helen	51. Luna
29. Thin bus site	51. Boyd	52. Boyd	53. Luna
30. Dismayed	53. Helen	54. Helen	55. Luna
31. Snail's inkes	55. Boyd	56. Boyd	57. Luna
32. Proverb	57. Helen	58. Helen	59. Luna
33. Pronoun	59. 60.	60. 61.	61. Luna
34. First inn	61. 62.	62. 63.	62. Luna
35. Mistral	63. 64.	64. 65.	63. Luna
36. Maliboo	65. 66.	66. 67.	64. Luna
37. 67.	67. 68.	68. 69.	65. Luna

Daily Cross-word Puzzle

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

1. Cannibals of being dissolved	2. Primitive title of address	3. Unseen with water after washing	4. Drift

<tbl_r cells="4" ix="5" maxcspan="1" maxrspan="1"

Wednesday, October 29, 1930

By Coward

SOCIETY

Telephone 321

Mrs. Sid Henry

When the summer-time is over,
And the Autumn brings the frost,
And the wind howls round the corner.

Like the wail of a soul that's lost;
And the garden lies all blackened,
Taking on a dreary look—

Then we want no better company
Than the fireside and a book.
When the geese are honking southward.

And wind-dirges hint of snow,
And crisp leaves drift in the hollows
Or on swirls dance to and fro;
When October spreads frost crystals
Everywhere the eye can look—
Then we have no better company
Than the fireside and a book.

—Selected.

The Senior High Parent Teachers Association will meet next Tuesday, November 4, afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Senior high school.

A group conference of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church, including delegates from eleven auxiliaries met yesterday in Washington. The conference convened in the Presbyterian church, and the delegates were met by a reception committee and registered by Mrs. Yancy Williams. Mrs. R. L. Searcy of Lewisville presided over the meeting, and a most inspiring devotional was led by Mrs. L. Jury of DeQueen, followed by prayer by Dr. John Williams, pastor of the Presbyterian church. A most cordial address of welcome was given by Mrs. Jim Butler. Splendid reports were read from the different auxiliaries and Mrs. K. G. McRae Jr. won the high score favor, and at the close of the games, the hostess served a delightful tea course.

Mrs. Ola Allen, Mrs. Cameron Allen, and Mrs. Roy Allen and little son, Roy Jr., spent yesterday in this city visiting with friends and relatives.

Mrs. Dan Green returned yesterday from a visit to friends and relatives in Washington.

Miss Edith Ruggles is spending this week in Texarkana.

"One-Trip Plumbers" Put in Appearance

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 29.—(UP)—A giant stride toward the millennium has been recorded in the office of Indiana's secretary of state.

"The One-Trip Plumbers" have registered their trade mark.

The corporation, with headquarters at Rock Island, Ill., accompanied its registrator with photographs of its truck emblazoned with the words: "The One-Trip Plumbers."

Only registered, the firm now may have business in Indiana.

Costs Money If Absent Minded, Librarian Says

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—(UP)—It costs money sometimes to be absent minded, judging from the records of Miss Dorothy Doyle, librarian at San Francisco's Civic Center Library.

A small fortune, $17,000 is paid to the city annually by book borrowers who keep the books too long or who lose them.

An average of 8000 books are lost or stolen yearly, Miss Doyle said.

College Queen Of Southwest

I. T. Bell Jr. and Miss Maggie Bell will return tomorrow from a week's

Prescription Druggists

WARD & SON
"We've Got It!"
The Leading Druggists
Phone 62

RIALTO
(Grand Theatre)

Today Only!
LON CHANEY
—In—
"THUNDER"
—ADMISSION—
10c and 25c

HAVE YOU SEEN
Good News?

The greatest picture of College Life Ever Produced

—With—
Bessie Love
Stanley Smith

SAENGER

Friday-Saturday
"BILLY THE KID"

—With—
John Mack Brown

—Soon—

Maurice Chevalier
—In—

"Play Boy of Paris"

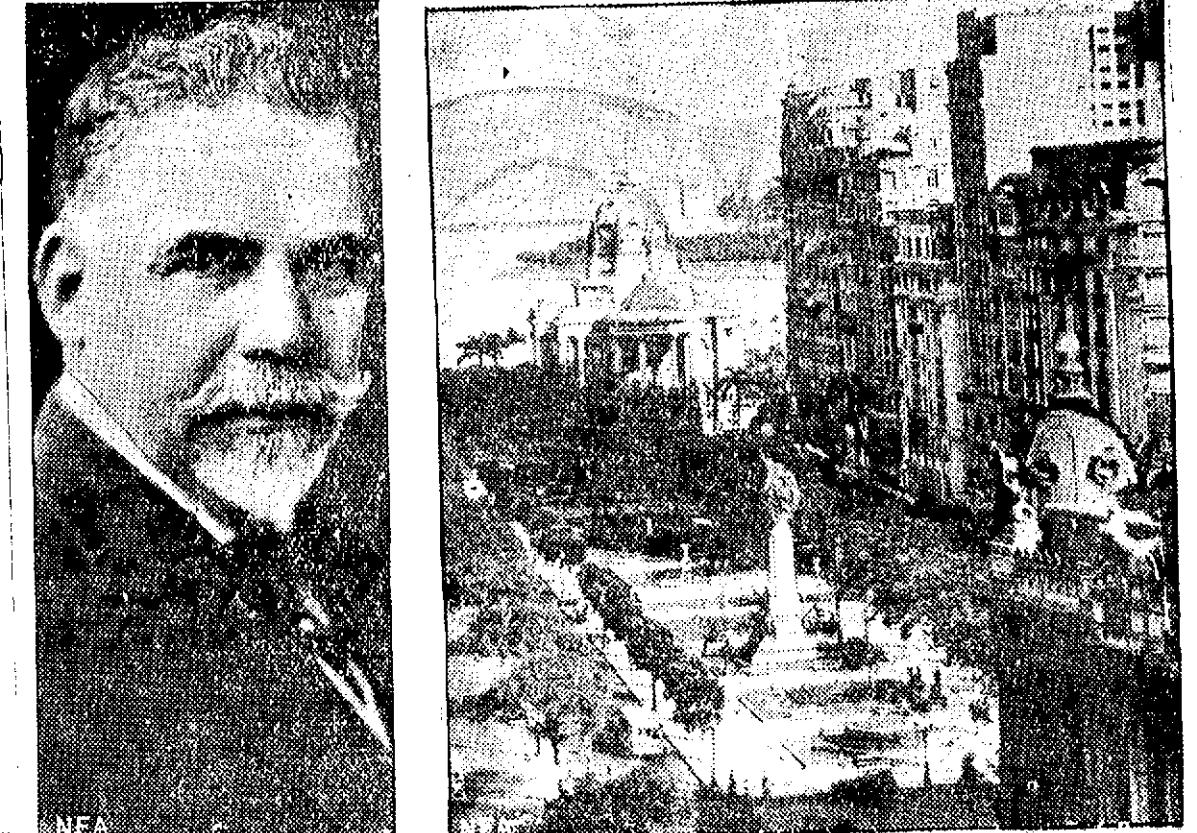

Envious eyes of co-eds throughout the southwest are focused on Alice McPhertride, above, of the University of Arkansas, who was crowned college queen at the southwestern all-college ball at Dallas, Tex., recently. She is a member of Tri Delta Sorority.

NEA Atlanta Bureau

Deposed President and Scene of Revolt

The scholarly Camel takes Puffy around.
To show him some dinosaur tracks
in the ground.
Says Puffy the Piggie: "Don't think it's a pose."
But my dad could make bigger footprints than those."

Scenes of vengeful rioting in the capital city of Rio de Janeiro followed the spectacular coup d'état which brought about the swift overthrow of the Brazilian government. Mobs surged through the Plaza Marechal Floriano, shown at the right, and other main thoroughfares as news of the success of the revolution was broadcast through the city; in the background, the dome of Monroe Palace, the Brazilian Senate Building, now in control of a revolutionary committee. At the left is Dr. Washington Luis, the deposed president, who yielded to arrest after hours of defying the rebels from the sanctuary of his executive mansion, the Palacio Cunha.

MOM'N POP

IF CHICK, IN ACCEPTING A COMMISSION, FROM JOE MOE, DID ANYTHING THAT WASN'T ABSOLUTELY RIGHT, I WANT YOU TO SPEAK TO HIM BEFORE YOU GO

I'LL CALL JOE UP AND LET HIM TEACH THAT YOUNG MAN A LESSON

NEW JCS-$50 YESTERDAY!
BOY! A FEW MORE COMMISSIONS LIKE THAT AND I'LL FLASH A GAS-GOBBLER THAT'LL MAKE TINY STULL'S LOOK LIKE A PRE-WAR FLINGER

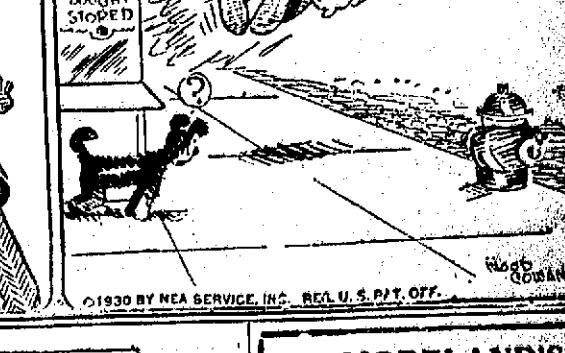

OH OH!
THERE'S A PROSPECT LOOKING IN JOE'S WINDOW NOW

HOW LONG HAVE YOU KNOWN THIS YOUNG MAN, MADAM?

WHY HE JUST INTRODUCED HIMSELF OUTSIDE

JOE MOE PIANOS SOLD TUNED BUILT STOPPED

HECK IT NEVER DID LIKE THAT DIZZY PIANO RACKET ANYWAY

©1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Joe Shows Chick a Trick

Personal Mention

Mrs. and Mrs. Simms Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Bailey, J. M. Fuller and Gilbert Fuller left today for Dallas, Texas, to attend the bedside of Fred Fuller, who is seriously ill there.

Paul Brant, proprietor of Brant's Drugstore, is confined to his home on Hervey street by illness. He was taken ill Saturday, but today was reported somewhat improved, though kept to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Brown have returned to their home in this city after a visit to Dallas and Waco, Texas. In Dallas they visited with their daughter Mrs. H. M. Hamilton and Mr. Hamilton and in Waco they visited Mr. and Mrs. F. W. May.

Plants His Only Friends

LANGLADE, Wis. (UP)—Frank Schudel is monarch of a little back woods farm in the cutover lands near here where he surveys hosts of freak plants. Living alone in almost complete solitude, Schudel has spent 11 years attempting to perfect better varieties of utilitarian crops and to create new forms of blossoming plants.

Train Halts Their Funeral

WAUPACA, Wis. (UP)—The funeral procession of Dorothy and Laura Calender was halted at the same crossing by approach of the same train that had wrecked their automobile and killed both a few days earlier.

Smoke Spoils Visibility

LEICESTER, (UP)—M. G. Bennett, assistant superintendent of the Meteorological office of the Air Ministry, addressing the National Smoke Abatement Society, declared that visibility at Valentia, on the south-west coast of Ireland, was affected by smoke from English industrial centers 350 miles away.

Los Angeles county officials estimate each patient treated at public hospitals there in 1929 cost $5.27.

A NEW winter shoe and bag ensemble combining dark green suede with a loosely woven green tweed accompanies a suit of the same tweed.

Married Woman Fears Gas—Eats Only Baby Food

"For 3 years I ate only baby food, everything else formed gas. Now thanks to Adlerite, I eat anything and enjoy life."—Mrs. M. Gunn.

Just ONE spoonful Adlerite relieves all GAS so you can eat and sleep better. Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel removing poisons you never knew were there, and which caused your stomach trouble. No matter what you havetried for stomach and bowels, Adlerite will surprise you! John S. Gibson Drug Co. Adv.

Save Your Shoes!

P. J. SUTTON
SHOE SHOP

MORELAND'S CHILI

At Your Grocers

$10 Reward

$10.00 reward for return of white pointer bird dog with liver colored head. One large liver spot on back. Four years old, weighs about 60 pounds.

JOE B. GREENE

KC BAKING POWDER

SAME PRICE FOR OVER 40 YEARS

Guaranteed pure and efficient.

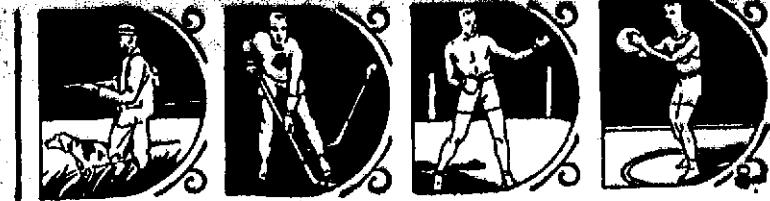

USE less than of high priced brands.

25
Pounds
25 Pounds

25<br

SPORT PAGE

BOBCATS BATTLE WITH GURDON TOMORROW

Local Team In Good Condition For Game

Bobcats Have Won Five Out of Six Games Played So Far This Season. Meet Gurdon Tomorrow and Camden Next Thursday Here

With five games won and one lost, Hope High School Bobcats go to Gurdon Thursday, where the High School Go-Devils of that city hold open their portals in readiness for Bobcat invasion. According to the dope at present, it seems that Hope and Gurdon have about equal football strength. Gurdon was defeated at the hands of Malvern by a margin of three touchdowns early in the season and Hope conceded defeat by the same number two weeks ago. It is to be noted, however, that Gurdon has beaten Prescott this season by running over one touchdown on them, and what happens in the Hope-Gurdon game should in a measure determine what is likely to take place in the Hope-Prescott game if no upsets occur.

After Thursday's game, scheduled for Friday, will be played on Thursday and likewise the one with Camden listed for the next Friday will take place on Thursday of next week. This is done to give the Bobcats a little more time between the Camden and Prescott games which were scheduled with only three days between, and that over the week-end.

Cat Inherits $15,000, Costly Home

Feline neighbors may make a lot of catty remarks about the "newly rich," but Mitzi, this 18-year-old cat, has a right to turn up her nose. For Mitzi has a $15,000 trust fund and a palatial estate bequeathed her by her mistress, the late Mrs. Maude F. Ide of San Gabriel, Calif. The will stipulates that Mrs. Pauline Goelze, a housekeeper, with whom Mitzi is shown above, is to remain at the house to care for the new owner.

Ready to Crown Ras Taffari

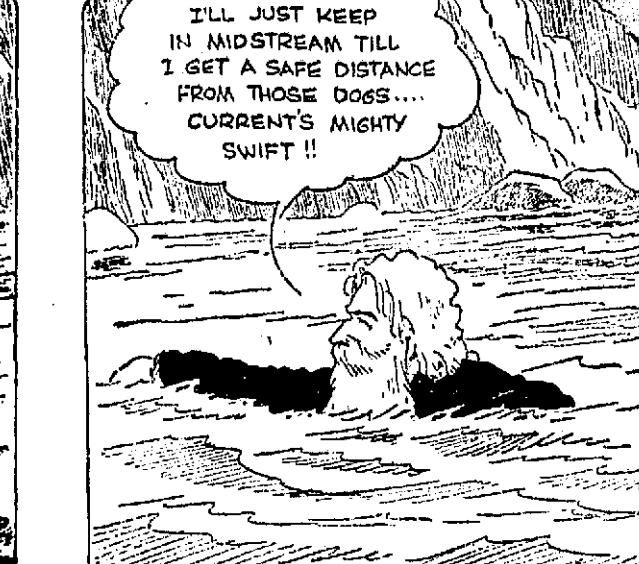

Here is the royal court band of Abyssinia which will play at the coronation of Ras Taffari, who on Nov. 2 officially becomes emperor of Abyssinia at his capital, Addis Ababa. The band, barefooted except for the director, has just learned to play "The Star-Spangled Banner" in honor of an official United States delegation which will attend. The new emperor is shown in the inset, beside a map indicating the location of his empire.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Time For Big Deeds!

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
C 1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

By Blosser

Hooks and Slides

by William Braucher

Intersectional Claims

AMONG the claims for intersectional honors, the South has presented a strong case this year. And when the name of the team to play on the Pacific coast in the Tournament of Roses game is announced, don't fall over if a southern team gets the call.

Southern football established a claim for consideration a few years ago when the Crimson Tide of Alabama beat Washington in the Rose Bowl. Then came Georgia Tech's Tornado, which left Notre Dame and California gasping for air.

This year, along comes Dan McGugin's Vanderbilt eleven to roll up a score of 38 to 7 against Minnesota. Vanderbilt might have made even more points but for bad breaks which called the ball back from scoring territory. The full significance of the Vandy victory was not appreciated until the Gopher hosts smacked Stanford right between the eyes with a scoreless tie.

That Georgia Gang

THEN, Georgia beat Yale, scoring one of the major upsets of the season. Georgia was not given a tumble by most of the handicappers, with Albie Booth leading the fight against the southern eleven. The balance, poise and speed displayed by Georgia was outdone only by the fighting qualities of the team.

Georgia had to crowd a lot of football into a few minutes to tip the Bulldog. Yale had lead of 14 to 6 in the third period, and the game looked to be safe. The turning point came when Quarterback Downs of Georgia pulled a most unexpected play on Yale's 36-yard line. It was fourth down with five yards to go and a punt seemed obvious. Chandler completed a pass to Catfish Smith and a Yale tackler didn't even get close to the fish.

Raving always is a bit boresome, but I like the fight that Georgia team showed. The team that comes from behind is the team to watch.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

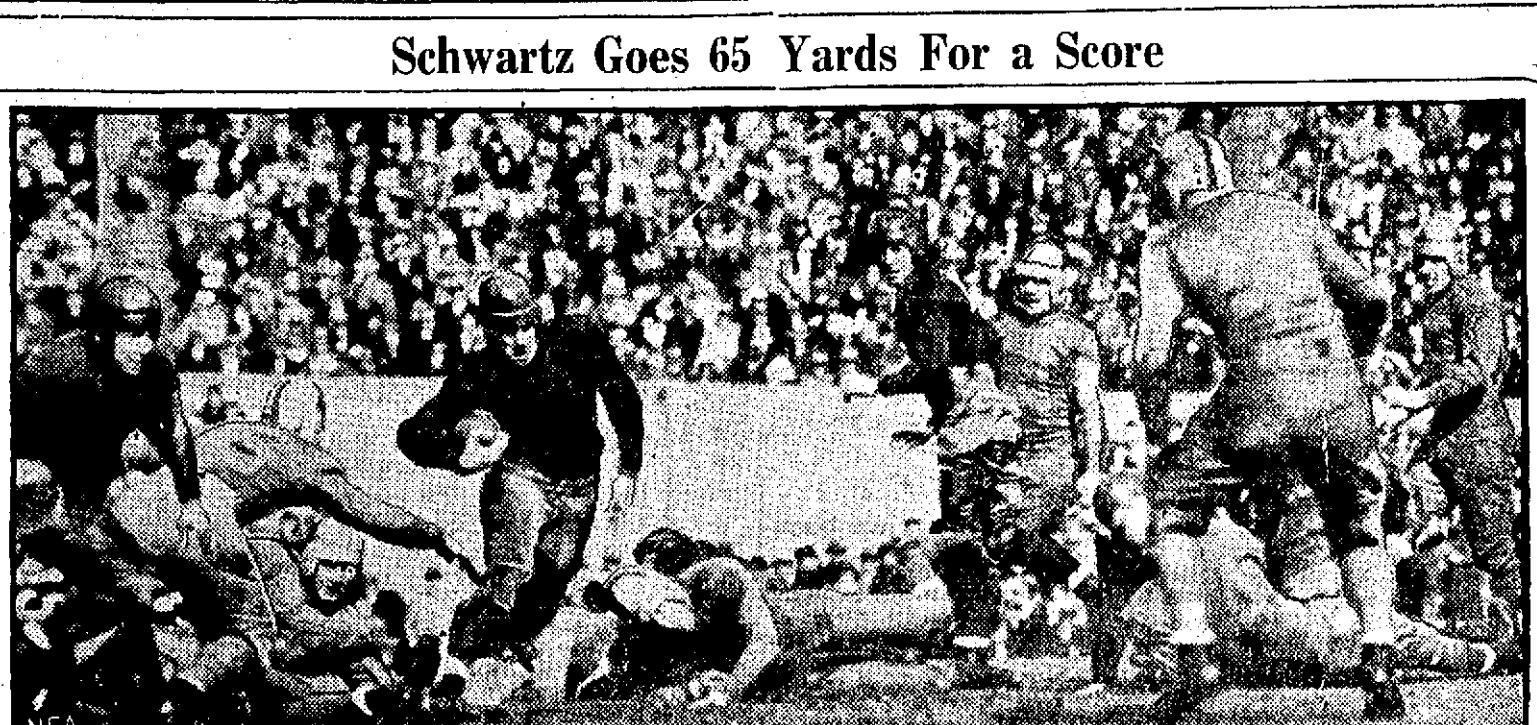

JOE McCARTHY'S chief reason in going to the Yankees instead of the Boston Red Sox was the possibility of a world series with the Cubs as foes. . . . Detectives have been on the trail of race horse poisoners at Jamaica. . . . Patented Burt Ingwersen is laboring to rebuild the great grid machine at Iowa that was wrecked on the grade crossing of Big Ten purity. . . . Burt's boys have been taking it on the chin with heart-rending regularity, but Burt is looking ahead . . . and he has a couple of twins named Jensvold, a halfback named Hickman and a fullback named Warrington who display symptoms of becoming football players . . . meantime the merchants of Iowa City are exhibiting placards in the windows, saying "Back the team."

The Tennesseans

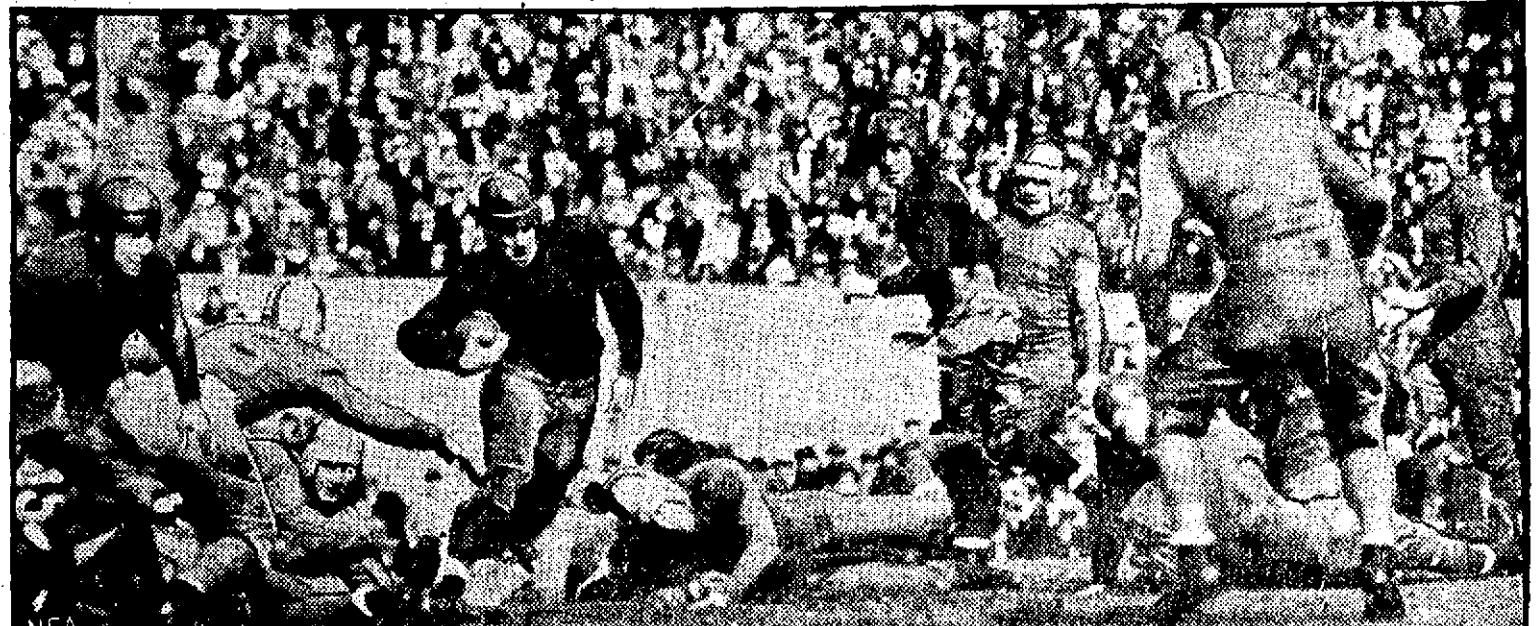

AT Tennessee, where Hackman and McEver roamed the chalky hills, defeat has not been known in the last 23 starts, and only four opponents have tied the Vols. It takes a great team to go for more than three years without a defeat, even though all of Tennessee's games are played within its own Southern Conference. It is a team many fans through the north and east would like to see in action against the Army or another eleven with a good intersectional reputation.

Wallace Wade, having his last year at Alabama before moving on to Duke next season, is putting a team on the field that rivals any in the country for power and poise. Sington and Clements, at the tackle posts, are as good as you will find on any team in the country.

The South is no longer a "comer" in football. Southern teams have established their ability.

Schwartz Goes 65 Yards For a Score

Notre Dame lost no time at all in opening the scoring that led to its 35 to 19 victory over the University of Pittsburgh. Getting the ball when Pitt punted after two line plays, Notre Dame sent Schwartz, brilliant halfback, dashing 65 yards for a touchdown on its first play. Schwartz is shown here scampering toward the goal just after breaking through the line of scrimmage.

Telephone Service U. S. to Australia

Long-Distance Call From Hope Is Worth $51 For First Three Minutes

"Regular commercial telephone service between North America and Australia was opened Monday, according to word received here today by H. W. Shepard, District Manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company.

The circuit to be employed in this service is by far the longest established for regular commercial telephony, the radio and wire lines involved being more than 14,000 miles long. Service will be available to all points in the United States and Cuba and to the principal cities of Mexico. In Australia, it will cover the states of Queensland, New South Wales, and Victoria, and the city of Adelaide. This territory has nearly half a million telephones serving a population of some 1,500,000 persons.

The Australian service has been arranged by the A. T. & T. company in cooperation with the British and Australian Post Offices and the Amalgamated Wireless company of Australia. The cost of a call between Hope and any Australian point will be

$51 for the first three minutes and $17 for each additional minute."

1,000,000 Pieces In Suite

PARK FALLS, Wis. (UP)—A bedroom suite inlaid with more than 1,000,000 pieces of patterned walnut, redwood, and spruce stands in the little bedroom back of Andrew Halakson's filling station here. Halakson spent four years making a bed, dresser, cedar chest and stand out of pieces of wood so small he was able to hold 10,000 of them in his two hands at one time.

Auto Crash Costs $850

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (UP)—An automobile accident cost LeDoy Larned, 51, of Schenectady $850 in fines. He was assessed $500 at Colonie for leaving the scene of the accident and $350 here on his plea of guilty to driving while intoxicated.

Ad Aids Unemployment

BELOIT, Wis. (UP)—As a contribution to solving the unemployment problem, the Beloit Daily News has agreed to publish free of cost all want ads offering odd jobs to men out of work. The offer was made when 17 men applied in person and 15 others telephoned in answer to the advertisement of a citizen wanting someone to mow and rake his lawn.

Napkin in Cornerstone

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (UP)—Articles sealed in the cornerstone of a new school in the town of Oakfield included an embroidered napkin, the handiwork of Delos Hatch, oldest surviving pupil in the district. The napkin was made by Hatch after he was 80 and was one of numerous articles representing activities and history of the town and district.

All Witnesses Scattered

THE PAS, Man. (UP)—All cases scheduled for trial at the opening of the court here were postponed when it learned the witnesses were scattered over thousands of miles. Witnesses in one case were reported to be in Northern Siberia, Southern Rhodesia, and along the shores of Hudson Bay.

Venezuela will celebrate its centenary in December.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS

Navigation of Red River Considered

Delegations Meet With Major J. C. H. Lee Tuesday at Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Oct. 29.—The Red river navigation meeting called by Major John C. H. Lee, United States engineer for this district, with headquarters at Vicksburg for the purpose of considering development of navigation in Red river west of Fulton to the mouth of the Ouachita convened here Tuesday.

About 100 delegates attended, representing Denison, Sherman, Bonham, Paris, Longview, Clarksville, Gainesville and other Texas points, Shreveport and Alexandria in Louisiana, and Hugo, Oklahoma. Major Lee presided.

Delegations presented briefs to show advantages that would result from the proposed development and these will be used by Major Lee in making recommendations to the government.

What was said to be the most comprehensive brief was filed by C. W. Longwill, secretary of the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce. Among the speakers was Congressman Sam Rayburn of the Fourth District. At noon delegations were guests of the Rotary Club at a luncheon at the Hotel Grim. United States Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas was the principal speaker. A plan submitted by the Denison delegates contemplates construction of a dam which they said would provide for navigation and assure flood control. This dam, it is estimated, would cost from 35 to 50 million dollars.

Lansing, Mich., proposes to provide a municipal coal yard, chiefly to aid the poor of the city.

Albie Booth is Hurt

Albie Booth, Yale's flaming football star, was painfully hurt on his first play in the Yale-Army game and had to be carried off the field on a stretcher. Run into the game in the second quarter, Booth intercepted an Army pass and received leg and head injuries when hit by three Army tacklers. He is shown here being carried off the field.

JOEL COFFIELD

TOOK PART IN SEVEN GAMES FOR U. OF CALIFORNIA IN 1928 BUT PLAYED LESS THAN 3 MINUTES HIS SPECIALTY WAS THE KICKOFF AND THAT HAS ALL HE WAS ASKED TO DO.

CHARLEY BRICKLEY

AND RALPH FLETCHER MAJORED IN ONE THING—DROPKICKING!!

By Laufer

Heart Hungry

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

PICTURE NEWS

© 1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELLA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore, where she has lived with her grandmother, MARGARET ROGERS, and her wealthy brother, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced, and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage.

HARVEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl. Mitchell takes EVELYN PARSONS, 18, to a party to introduce his daughter to other young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affection. She gives Celia a few dollars and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and TOD JORDAN, racing but of dubious character.

Although Mitchell forbids Celia to see Jordan, she goes about with the young man frequently. LISI DUNCAN, a girl, Celia's best friend, becomes her loyal friend. Shields comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She falls in love and loses her heart to Jordan. Celia is a guest at Mrs. Parsons' up-town apartment. She meets Shields on the street one afternoon and is with him when Jordan appears. They enter a shop, thus avoiding an encounter.

Lisi, Celia and Mrs. Parsons are present. The racing men, they hear a radio report of a disastrous fire in a building where Shields is working.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLI

LISI DUNCAN grasped the other girl's arm. "Where are you going?" she cried.

Celia had caught up a sport coat, the first wrap in sight. She threw it around her.

"Don't stop me!" she pleaded, half sobbing. "It's Barney! Don't you hear? He's there—in the building that's on fire. I've got to get there. Let me go!"

Frothing herself, she rushed from the apartment. Lisi turned, bewildered, toward Mrs. Parsons.

"Go after her!" the woman said, rising. "See if you can stop her!"

Without a coat Lisi darted into the corridor. She caught up with Celia as the girl was ringing for the elevator.

"Don't cry, honey!" she begged. "Maybe it isn't so bad. Please don't cry!"

A door slammed and Evelyn Parsons came bustling down the hall to join them. She reached the girls just as they were stepping into the descending car. At once Evelyn took charge.

"Celia," she said, "you must tell me where you're going! What's the meaning of this?"

Lisi was the one who answered. "We're going to the fire!" she exclaimed. "Celia knows someone who's there. Isn't it exciting?"

"But this is impossible!" Evelyn protested. It was in vain. They had reached the ground floor and the two girls hurried toward the entrance. Mrs. Parsons hesitated, pulled her cloak more closely about her and, with a dismayed gaze upward, followed.

"My car's at the right," Lisi pointed. In another minute all three were squeezed into the close quarters of the coupe and the motor was throbbing.

Lisi swerved the car into the stream of traffic.

"This is madness," Evelyn Parsons stormed. "You can't mean you're really going to this fire!"

If Celia heard her she gave no sign of it. Her face was white and drawn. She pressed her hands together.

"Hurry, Lisi," she begged. "Oh, I was afraid something would happen. If Barney's hurt I'll never forgive myself! Can't we go faster?"

"Barney?" Evelyn caught the word and eyed Celia shrewdly. "Do you mean—is it the young man you knew in Baltimore?"

THE girl nodded mechanically.

"He isn't in Baltimore any more," she said. "He's here. I saw him this afternoon and he said he was going to this meeting to make pictures. Somehow I felt then it would be dangerous, but he laughed at me."

Lisi asked about the address. She was driving with her customary abandon, darting between other vehicles with a recklessness only matched by certain taxicab drivers. When she was forced to stop for traffic lights she jammed on the brakes.

Mrs. Parsons was white-faced, too, now. Each time the coupe veered precariously she looked in deadly terror. Each time it jolted to a stop she held her breath. She had never driven with Lisi before.

"Be careful!" Evelyn Parsons implored. "Look—you barely missed that roadster!"

The girl at the wheel murmured something inaudible. Her lips were set and she did not relax the motor's speed.

Traffic became more dense. The coupe was forced to go slower. Then suddenly the green lights flashed and the car shot forward.

"We're nearly there," Lisi said, keeping her eyes straight ahead.

Celia uttered a low cry. "Smoke! See it—over there!"

"Lisi, you'll never be able to get to this place," Mrs. Parsons declared. "Let's go back!"

"We're going to make it!" Lisi answered determinedly. "Smoke! I should think there was! Can't you smell it?"

They were hemmed in now by motor cars, trucks and other vehicles. Horns were honking and drivers complaining loudly. The coupe could barely move.

Lisi ducked her head forward. "Look at it!" she cried. "Did you ever see anything like it?"

They were still some distance from the burning building. High overhead the thick black smoke curled upward. Now and then it colored with a dingy reddish-brown, brightened and then grew dark. The air was heavy with the odor of smoke.

On the sidewalks men and women

were running. The din was terrible.

Celia had begun to weep hysterically.

"Let's get out and walk," she begged. "We'll never get there any other way. Oh, Barney, how will I ever find him? How am I to know if he's safe?"

Lisi tried to move the car forward. The effort was useless.

"Fire's still burning," she said. "You can tell from the sky. Lord, what a blaze that must have been!"

Mrs. Parsons interrupted shrilly: "This is dangerous! We've got to get away, Lisi. I tell you we've got to! I won't stay!"

"Barney?" Evelyn caught the word and eyed Celia shrewdly. "Do you mean—is it the young man you knew in Baltimore?"

THE girl nodded mechanically.

"He isn't in Baltimore any more," she said. "He's here. I saw him this afternoon and he said he was going to this meeting to make pictures. Somehow I felt then it would be dangerous, but he laughed at me."

Lisi asked about the address. She was driving with her customary abandon, darting between other vehicles with a recklessness only matched by certain taxicab drivers. When she was forced to stop for traffic lights she jammed on the brakes.

Mrs. Parsons was white-faced, too, now. Each time the coupe veered precariously she looked in deadly terror. Each time it jolted to a stop she held her breath. She had never driven with Lisi before.

"Be careful!" Evelyn Parsons implored. "Look—you barely missed that roadster!"

The girl at the wheel murmured something inaudible. Her lips were set and she did not relax the motor's speed.

Traffic became more dense. The coupe was forced to go slower. Then suddenly the green lights flashed and the car shot forward.

"We're nearly there," Lisi said, keeping her eyes straight ahead.

Celia uttered a low cry. "Smoke! See it—over there!"

"Lisi, you'll never be able to get to this place," Mrs. Parsons declared. "Let's go back!"

"We're going to make it!" Lisi answered determinedly. "Smoke! I should think there was! Can't you smell it?"

They were hemmed in now by motor cars, trucks and other vehicles. Horns were honking and drivers complaining loudly. The coupe could barely move.

Lisi ducked her head forward. "Look at it!" she cried. "Did you ever see anything like it?"

They were still some distance from the burning building. High overhead the thick black smoke curled upward. Now and then it colored with a dingy reddish-brown, brightened and then grew dark. The air was heavy with the odor of smoke.

On the sidewalks men and women

were running. The din was terrible.

Celia had begun to weep hysterically.

"Let's get out and walk," she begged. "We'll never get there any other way. Oh, Barney, how will I ever find him? How am I to know if he's safe?"

Lisi tried to move the car forward. The effort was useless.

"Fire's still burning," she said. "You can tell from the sky. Lord, what a blaze that must have been!"

Mrs. Parsons interrupted shrilly: "This is dangerous! We've got to get away, Lisi. I tell you we've got to! I won't stay!"

"Barney?" Evelyn caught the word and eyed Celia shrewdly. "Do you mean—is it the young man you knew in Baltimore?"

THE girl nodded mechanically.

"He isn't in Baltimore any more," she said. "He's here. I saw him this afternoon and he said he was going to this meeting to make pictures. Somehow I felt then it would be dangerous, but he laughed at me."

Lisi asked about the address. She was driving with her customary abandon, darting between other vehicles with a recklessness only matched by certain taxicab drivers. When she was forced to stop for traffic lights she jammed on the brakes.

Mrs. Parsons was white-faced, too, now. Each time the coupe veered precariously she looked in deadly terror. Each time it jolted to a stop she held her breath. She had never driven with Lisi before.

"Be careful!" Evelyn Parsons implored. "Look—you barely missed that roadster!"

The girl at the wheel murmured something inaudible. Her lips were set and she did not relax the motor's speed.

Traffic became more dense. The coupe was forced to go slower. Then suddenly the green lights flashed and the car shot forward.

"We're nearly there," Lisi said, keeping her eyes straight ahead.

Celia uttered a low cry. "Smoke! See it—over there!"

"Lisi, you'll never be able to get to this place," Mrs. Parsons declared. "Let's go back!"

"We're going to make it!" Lisi answered determinedly. "Smoke! I should think there was! Can't you smell it?"

They were hemmed in now by motor cars, trucks and other vehicles. Horns were honking and drivers complaining loudly. The coupe could barely move.

Lisi ducked her head forward. "Look at it!" she cried. "Did you ever see anything like it?"

They were still some distance from the burning building. High overhead the thick black smoke curled upward. Now and then it colored with a dingy reddish-brown, brightened and then grew dark. The air was heavy with the odor of smoke.

On the sidewalks men and women

were running. The din was terrible.

Celia had begun to weep hysterically.

"Let's get out and walk," she begged. "We'll never get there any other way. Oh, Barney, how will I ever find him? How am I to know if he's safe?"

Lisi tried to move the car forward. The effort was useless.

"Fire's still burning," she said. "You can tell from the sky. Lord, what a blaze that must have been!"

Mrs. Parsons interrupted shrilly: "This is dangerous! We've got to get away, Lisi. I tell you we've got to! I won't stay!"

"Barney?" Evelyn caught the word and eyed Celia shrewdly. "Do you mean—is it the young man you knew in Baltimore?"

THE girl nodded mechanically.

"He isn't in Baltimore any more," she said. "He's here. I saw him this afternoon and he said he was going to this meeting to make pictures. Somehow I felt then it would be dangerous, but he laughed at me."

Lisi asked about the address. She was driving with her customary abandon, darting between other vehicles with a recklessness only matched by certain taxicab drivers. When she was forced to stop for traffic lights she jammed on the brakes.

Mrs. Parsons was white-faced, too, now. Each time the coupe veered precariously she looked in deadly terror. Each time it jolted to a stop she held her breath. She had never driven with Lisi before.

"Be careful!" Evelyn Parsons implored. "Look—you barely missed that roadster!"

The girl at the wheel murmured something inaudible. Her lips were set and she did not relax the motor's speed.

Traffic became more dense. The coupe was forced to go slower. Then suddenly the green lights flashed and the car shot forward.

"We're nearly there," Lisi said, keeping her eyes straight ahead.

Celia uttered a low cry. "Smoke! See it—over there!"

"Lisi, you'll never be able to get to this place," Mrs. Parsons declared. "Let's go back!"

"We're going to make it!" Lisi answered determinedly. "Smoke! I should think there was! Can't you smell it?"

They were hemmed in now by motor cars, trucks and other vehicles. Horns were honking and drivers complaining loudly. The coupe could barely move.

Lisi ducked her head forward. "Look at it!" she cried. "Did you ever see anything like it?"

They were still some distance from the burning building. High overhead the thick black smoke curled upward. Now and then it colored with a dingy reddish-brown, brightened and then grew dark. The air was heavy with the odor of smoke.

On the sidewalks men and women

were running. The din was terrible.

Celia had begun to weep hysterically.

"Let's get out and walk," she begged. "We'll never get there any other way. Oh, Barney, how will I ever find him? How am I to know if he's safe?"

Lisi tried to move the car forward. The effort was useless.

"Fire's still burning," she said. "You can tell from the sky. Lord, what a blaze that must have been!"

Mrs. Parsons interrupted shrilly: "This is dangerous! We've got to get away, Lisi. I tell you we've got to! I won't stay!"

"Barney?" Evelyn caught the word and eyed Celia shrewdly. "Do you mean—is it the young man you knew in Baltimore?"

THE girl nodded mechanically.

"He isn't in Baltimore any more," she said. "He's here. I saw him this afternoon and he said he was going to this meeting to make pictures. Somehow I felt then it would be dangerous, but he laughed at me."

Lisi asked about the address. She was driving with her customary abandon, darting between other vehicles with a recklessness only matched by certain taxicab drivers. When she was forced to stop for traffic lights she jammed on the brakes.

Mrs. Parsons was white-faced, too, now. Each time the coupe veered precariously she looked in deadly terror. Each time it jolted to a stop she held her breath. She had never driven with Lisi before.

"Be careful!" Evelyn Parsons implored. "Look—you barely missed that roadster!"

The girl at the wheel murmured something inaudible. Her lips were set and she did not relax the motor's speed.

Traffic became more dense. The coupe was forced to go slower. Then suddenly the green lights flashed and the car shot forward.

"We're nearly there," Lisi said, keeping her eyes straight ahead.

Celia uttered a low cry. "Smoke! See it—over there!"

"Lisi, you'll never be able to get to this place," Mrs. Parsons declared. "Let's go back!"

"We're going to make it!" Lisi answered determinedly. "Smoke! I should think there was! Can't you smell it?"

</

Entombed Miners Not Yet Rescued

Crews at McAlester Held Back By After-Damp
and Debris

MALESTER, Okla., Oct. 23.—Fighting after-damp and handicaps of debris, rescue crews continued last night to reach lower levels of the Healey No. 4 mine, where a explosion Monday night entombed them and killed William Donley, working at the mine mouth.

John Russo, working with Donley, was injured when he was hurled against the upple. John Moore, a trained rescue worker, was taken to a hospital unconscious.

Thirty-one men, most of them from neighboring mines, formed the rescue party. Several were overcome by gas.

Workers who ventured too far into the mine were driven back.

It is thought some may have escaped the explosion, which was heard two miles away, and the coal damp that followed led workers to redouble efforts to break through rock falls and improve ventilation in the mine.

A group of seven who went into the mine this afternoon returned to the surface after three hours work to report they believed they had been within about 400 feet of the victims.

Walter Tate, one of the rescuers, said the gas was too dense to permit him to go further.

Three falls of debris had been bridged this afternoon to permit rapid removal of any men found alive.

Miller D. Hay, chief mine inspector, said he believed all had perished.

House Self-Supporting

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Five cooperative houses at the University of Wisconsin have been made self-supporting although providing pleasant and economical living conditions for scores of girl students of modest means.

How to play Bridge AUCTION or CONTRACT

by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright, 1930, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE NO. 2

Players are still arguing as to whether or not the informative double is of any value to the game. Here is a hand where an opponent of the use of the informative double had a chance to crow.

Example Hand No. 1

Spades — 6, 4
Hearts — K, Q, J, 7
Diamonds — Q, J, 7, 3
Clubs — J, 6, 5

Spades — 10
Hearts — A, 10, 4, 2
Diamonds — A, 9, 5, 4
Clubs — K, 7, 4, 2

Spades — A, K, J, 5
Hearts — 9
Diamonds — K, 10, 2
Clubs — A, Q, 9, 3

Spades — 8, 9, 3, 2
Hearts — 8, 6, 5, 3
Diamonds — 8, 6
Clubs — 10, 8

AUCTION BIDDING:
No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one spade. Should A make an informative double or pass? Even the advocates of the informative double would agree that A should pass with this hand. There is no chance for game unless B has a free bid, so why not wait and see what will happen. A has a good defensive hand so game is probably in no danger; and yet his hand is strong enough to warrant a try for game himself if his partner overbids one spade.

It is a very common situation and should be carefully noted. If A passes the hand will be played at spades and Y, Z will score three odd and simple honors, a total score of 57 points. If A doubles and B bids two hearts, Y will double and defeat the bid three tricks.
As they also hold simple honors Y, Z will thus score 330 points. The difference between the two bids is a net gain of 273 points for the player who has the good judgment not to double with

A's hand. The lesson to be learned from this hand is not to make informative doubles with weak hands.

CONTRACT BIDDING:

Z should bid one spade and A should pass. A player should have a much stronger hand at Contract than at Auction to justify an informative double. As Y has only two small spades, and thus no help for his partner's spade bid, he should bid one no trump.
B should pass and Z should bid three no trumps. His hand is so much stronger than his first bid of one spade indicated that he is justified in bidding three no trumps. All pass and with the heart opening by B, Y, Z easily score game.

There is nothing more instructive than end plays, for every player must understand how to play them if he wishes to be a little better than his neighbor. The following are two typical examples:

End Play No. 1

Hearts — none
Clubs — 10, 6
Diamonds — none
Spades — 4, 2

Hearts — Y
Clubs — B
Diamonds — Z

Hearts — none
Clubs — 9
Diamonds — K
Spades — J, 7

Hearts — none
Clubs — 9
Diamonds — K
Spades — J, 7

Hearts — 9, 8, 5
Clubs — none
Diamonds — 2
Spades — none

Hearts — 10, 5
Clubs — K, 8
Diamonds — K, 3
Spades — 6, 3

Spades are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y, Z win one trick against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and trump with the four of trumps.
This play will force B to overtrump with the eight of trumps. If B now leads the nine of trumps, Z should cover the jack and thus make his seven good. If B should lead the ten of trumps, Z should play the seven and so force A to play the queen. If B leads the jack of clubs, A is forced to trump and thus Z's jack of trumps must be a winner. In any case, therefore, Y, Z

End Play No. 2

Hearts — none
Clubs — 10, 5
Diamonds — 10, 6
Spades — 7, 5, 2

Hearts — 4, 2
Clubs — Q
Diamonds — Q, 8
Spades — Q, 2

Hearts — 10
Clubs — K, 8
Diamonds — K, 3
Spades — 6, 3

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y, Z win five of the seven tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which
Y should discard another spade. Z
should discard his last diamond. A is forced to lead another heart and Y
should discard his last spade. B is now
forced to do one of three things, (a)
trump; (b) discard a diamond or
(c) discard a spade.

(a) Should B trump, Z will over-trump and thus score the balance of the tricks by cross ruffing.

(b) Should B discard a diamond, Z
should trump and lead the king of

clubs. Z should then lead a spade
which Y will trump with his last club
and make his good diamond.

(c) Should B discard a spade, Z
should trump and lead a spade which Y should trump. Y should then lead a trump which Z should win and thus be able to make his last spade. In any way, therefore, Y, Z must score five of the seven tricks. At trick two, if A refuses to win the ten of hearts and so
being forced in the lead, Y should discard his last diamond and the problem
is easily from then on. This end play
is also a very common one in that its solution depends on the forcing of discards. Very frequently an opponent
can be forced to discard to his disadvantage, so be on the lookout for
the opportunity.

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead.
How can Y, Z win five of the seven
tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On
this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which
Y should discard another spade. Z
should discard his last diamond. A is forced to lead another heart and Y
should discard his last spade. B is now
forced to do one of three things, (a)
trump; (b) discard a diamond or
(c) discard a spade.

(a) Should B trump, Z will over-
trump and thus score the balance of
the tricks by cross ruffing.

(b) Should B discard a diamond, Z
should trump and lead the king of

clubs. Z should then lead a spade
which Y will trump with his last club
and make his good diamond.

(c) Should B discard a spade, Z
should trump and lead a spade which
Y should trump. Y should then lead a
trump which Z should win and thus be able to make his last spade. In any way, therefore, Y, Z must score five of the seven tricks. At trick two, if A
refuses to win the ten of hearts and so
being forced in the lead, Y should
discard his last diamond and the problem
is easily from then on. This end play
is also a very common one in that its
solution depends on the forcing of
discards. Very frequently an opponent
can be forced to discard to his disadvantage, so be on the lookout for
the opportunity.

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead.
How can Y, Z win five of the seven
tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On
this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which
Y should discard another spade. Z
should discard his last diamond. A is forced to lead another heart and Y
should discard his last spade. B is now
forced to do one of three things, (a)
trump; (b) discard a diamond or
(c) discard a spade.

(a) Should B trump, Z will over-
trump and thus score the balance of
the tricks by cross ruffing.

(b) Should B discard a diamond, Z
should trump and lead the king of

clubs. Z should then lead a spade
which Y will trump with his last club
and make his good diamond.

(c) Should B discard a spade, Z
should trump and lead a spade which
Y should trump. Y should then lead a
trump which Z should win and thus be able to make his last spade. In any way, therefore, Y, Z must score five of the seven tricks. At trick two, if A
refuses to win the ten of hearts and so
being forced in the lead, Y should
discard his last diamond and the problem
is easily from then on. This end play
is also a very common one in that its
solution depends on the forcing of
discards. Very frequently an opponent
can be forced to discard to his disadvantage, so be on the lookout for
the opportunity.

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead.
How can Y, Z win five of the seven
tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On
this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which
Y should discard another spade. Z
should discard his last diamond. A is forced to lead another heart and Y
should discard his last spade. B is now
forced to do one of three things, (a)
trump; (b) discard a diamond or
(c) discard a spade.

(a) Should B trump, Z will over-
trump and thus score the balance of
the tricks by cross ruffing.

(b) Should B discard a diamond, Z
should trump and lead the king of

clubs. Z should then lead a spade
which Y will trump with his last club
and make his good diamond.

(c) Should B discard a spade, Z
should trump and lead a spade which
Y should trump. Y should then lead a
trump which Z should win and thus be able to make his last spade. In any way, therefore, Y, Z must score five of the seven tricks. At trick two, if A
refuses to win the ten of hearts and so
being forced in the lead, Y should
discard his last diamond and the problem
is easily from then on. This end play
is also a very common one in that its
solution depends on the forcing of
discards. Very frequently an opponent
can be forced to discard to his disadvantage, so be on the lookout for
the opportunity.

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead.
How can Y, Z win five of the seven
tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On
this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which
Y should discard another spade. Z
should discard his last diamond. A is forced to lead another heart and Y
should discard his last spade. B is now
forced to do one of three things, (a)
trump; (b) discard a diamond or
(c) discard a spade.

(a) Should B trump, Z will over-
trump and thus score the balance of
the tricks by cross ruffing.

(b) Should B discard a diamond, Z
should trump and lead the king of

clubs. Z should then lead a spade
which Y will trump with his last club
and make his good diamond.

(c) Should B discard a spade, Z
should trump and lead a spade which
Y should trump. Y should then lead a
trump which Z should win and thus be able to make his last spade. In any way, therefore, Y, Z must score five of the seven tricks. At trick two, if A
refuses to win the ten of hearts and so
being forced in the lead, Y should
discard his last diamond and the problem
is easily from then on. This end play
is also a very common one in that its
solution depends on the forcing of
discards. Very frequently an opponent
can be forced to discard to his disadvantage, so be on the lookout for
the opportunity.

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead.
How can Y, Z win five of the seven
tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On
this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which
Y should discard another spade. Z
should discard his last diamond. A is forced to lead another heart and Y
should discard his last spade. B is now
forced to do one of three things, (a)
trump; (b) discard a diamond or
(c) discard a spade.

(a) Should B trump, Z will over-
trump and thus score the balance of
the tricks by cross ruffing.

(b) Should B discard a diamond, Z
should trump and lead the king of

clubs. Z should then lead a spade
which Y will trump with his last club
and make his good diamond.

(c) Should B discard a spade, Z
should trump and lead a spade which
Y should trump. Y should then lead a
trump which Z should win and thus be able to make his last spade. In any way, therefore, Y, Z must score five of the seven tricks. At trick two, if A
refuses to win the ten of hearts and so
being forced in the lead, Y should
discard his last diamond and the problem
is easily from then on. This end play
is also a very common one in that its
solution depends on the forcing of
discards. Very frequently an opponent
can be forced to discard to his disadvantage, so be on the lookout for
the opportunity.

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead.
How can Y, Z win five of the seven
tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On
this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which
Y should discard another spade. Z
should discard his last diamond. A is forced to lead another heart and Y
should discard his last spade. B is now
forced to do one of three things, (a)
trump; (b) discard a diamond or
(c) discard a spade.

(a) Should B trump, Z will over-
trump and thus score the balance of
the tricks by cross ruffing.

(b) Should B discard a diamond, Z
should trump and lead the king of

clubs. Z should then lead a spade
which Y will trump with his last club
and make his good diamond.

(c) Should B discard a spade, Z
should trump and lead a spade which
Y should trump. Y should then lead a
trump which Z should win and thus be able to make his last spade. In any way, therefore, Y, Z must score five of the seven tricks. At trick two, if A
refuses to win the ten of hearts and so
being forced in the lead, Y should
discard his last diamond and the problem
is easily from then on. This end play
is also a very common one in that its
solution depends on the forcing of
discards. Very frequently an opponent
can be forced to discard to his disadvantage, so be on the lookout for
the opportunity.

Clubs are trumps and Z is in the lead.
How can Y, Z win five of the seven
tricks against any defense?

Z should lead the king of diamonds
and follow with the ten of hearts. On
this trick, won by A, Y should discard
the deuce of spades. A has no alternative but to lead another heart on which<br